BCPA Meeting With MLAs In Victoria

Members of the British Columbia Police Association (BCPA), are meeting with provincial MLAs today in Victoria. Established in 2008, the BCPA is the province-wide organization that provides a united voice for front-line municipal policing in British Columbia.

The BCPA will be meeting with provincial MLAs to discuss important issues facing our members as well as an opportunity to listen to their concerns about policing in their communities.

The 2,500-member BCPA is made up the members of the province's 11 municipal police services as well as members of the South Coast BC Transit Association Police Services.

The goal of the BCPA is to encourage improvements in the working conditions, equipment, training and compensation of its members, and, by so doing, improve policing service to the public in B.C.'s municipalities.
